

A FIELD REPORT ON THE INDIE BUILDER ECONOMY

The Builder's Exchange

How TrustMRR turns a founder's hidden revenue into proof the world can trust — and trade.

1,000 builders tracked across 65 countries · one open ledger of proof

A business nobody can verify is a business nobody will pay for.

Every year, thousands of founders build real, revenue-generating software alone — in a spare room, a side-project repo, a Stripe dashboard only they can see. The product is real. The customers are real. But the proof lives in a screenshot anyone could fake.

That's the gap TrustMRR exists to close — turning a founder's private claim into a number a stranger can trust on sight.

$0 → $3.57M

the monthly-revenue spread inside TrustMRR today — from a founder's very first dollar to a category leader nobody outside their own dashboard used to be able to verify.

The mechanism is simple. The trust it creates is not.

1

Connect

The founder links the real system of record — Stripe, RevenueCat, Paddle, Polar, and others — the same rails that already process the money.

2

Verify

Revenue, MRR, growth, and subscriber counts are pulled directly from the processor. Nothing is typed in, and nothing is easy to fake.

3

List

A verified profile goes live — a business other founders, acquirers, and investors can evaluate on facts, not on faith.

Payment-provider verification is the whole innovation: a listing on TrustMRR isn't a pitch, it's a receipt.

This isn't a spreadsheet. It's a living census of how independent software gets built.

1,000

builders verified

and counting, from the very first Stripe webhook to eight-figure lifetime revenue

65

countries represented

a genuinely global builder base, not one region's side-hustle scene

29

market categories

from AI to fintech to real estate — indie software now touches every industry

500,597

paying customers

collectively behind the businesses on the platform — real people paying real founders

The same platform holds a first dollar and a category leader.

That's rare — and it's the point. TrustMRR isn't only a marketplace for winners; it's the on-ramp where the next winners get discovered.

20% of every listing sits in each revenue band from pre-revenue to $100K MRR — proof that founders join long before they're ready to sell, and stay as they grow.

For buyers and investors, that spread means deal flow at every price point — a $500 side-project acqui-hire and a seven-figure platform acquisition, sourced the same verified way.

Founders don't just get verified — they get a mirror.

Once revenue is verified, TrustMRR can quietly compare it against everything else a business projects to the world — its domain authority, its traffic, its follower count.

Across the platform, businesses with stronger domain authority post dramatically higher revenue — over 500× higher MRR at the top authority tier versus the bottom. That's not a coincidence a founder can see from inside their own dashboard alone.

A NEW KIND OF SELF-AWARENESS

“Am I actually building something valuable — or does it just feel that way from inside my own dashboard?”

For the first time, a solo founder can answer that question against real peers — by category, by country, by growth stage — instead of guessing.

Quietly, TrustMRR has become the closest thing indie software has to a stock exchange.

1 in 4

listings is actively for sale

liquidity that simply didn't exist for tiny, founder-owned software businesses before

$86.8M

in combined asking price

across today's for-sale listings alone — real, verified businesses, openly priced

~3x

typical asking multiple of annual revenue — a market-clearing price discovered by many small deals, not one banker's guess

For sellers: a real exit for a business too small for a broker to bother with. For buyers: curated deal flow with the numbers already checked.

The builders showing up today are a preview of the platform tomorrow.

AI-labeled startups are already the single largest category on TrustMRR — more than three times the runner-up. Whatever wave of company creation comes next will likely show up here first, verified from day one.

● Benchmarking as a Service

Turn the peer-comparison insight founders already crave into a standalone product — category and country-level indices, sold back to the builders who generate the data.

● Structured Deal Rooms

Move beyond an asking price to guided, escrow-backed transactions — the missing plumbing between 'listed for sale' and 'money changes hands.'

● Revenue-Based Financing

Verified, processor-sourced MRR is exactly the collateral revenue-based lenders want — TrustMRR could underwrite growth capital directly against it.

● An Investor Access Layer

Curated, verified deal flow at every stage is a standing invitation to funds and angels looking for real traction without the cold outreach.

THE LEDGER IS OPEN

Every verified dollar makes the next founder easier to trust.

TrustMRR's real product was never the listings page — it's the growing proof that solo-built revenue is real, comparable, and finally investable at any scale. What started as a marketplace is becoming the public record of an entire economy that used to be invisible.

A field report on the indie builder economy · TrustMRR